Arroyo Acevedo, 2025-09-17 The promotion of health in universities is of great importance as it allows for the encouragement of healthy lifestyles and the prevention of diseases among students, teaching staff, and administrative personnel. Carvalho, Emily Darlington, Teresa Vilaça, 2024-12-17 Health education, well-being improvement, and advocacy are effective health promotion strategies among cutting-edge Public Health practices. Salutogenic perspectives, rooted in ecological models, have taken their rightful place to empower individuals and communities to change their life ecosystems and preserve and improve their health. It is imperative to shift from targeting protective or risk factors, which have linear causal relationships with health conditions and/or comorbidities, and encompass a systemic understanding of the role of health determinants in creating health. Individual, collective, and structural ecological approaches can better reduce health inequities. Moreover, engaging the presumed beneficiaries from such strategies ensures that actual needs are identified, and choices are context-specific. It improves the whole implementation process as well as its results. Higher levels of participation, such as co-creation, imply a bottom-up, voluntary, collaborative process rooted in values of diversity, mutual trust, openness, autonomy, freedom, and respect, as well as shared expertise, responsibility, and decision-making, which are essential values in co-creating health promotion.

However, when it comes to increasing longevity, these activities may not be an ideal option for the general population. Mind-body exercise, which combines physical exercise with mindfulness, may be more effective in promoting and restoring health, especially for those with chronic symptoms or poor health conditions. Many mind-body exercises, such as Taichi, Qigong, Chan-Chuang, and Yoga, have their roots in Eastern cultures. They have gained popularity around the world and became a new fashion in the post COVID-19 era. These exercises typically help practitioners shift their focus from the outside world, past, or future to the present moment through gentle body movements. Mind-body exercises emphasize the body's innate ability to heal itself. By disconnecting from the "noisy" outside world, the body is given the opportunity to heal. This aligns with the classic belief in Chinese medicine that "the body itself is the best medicine".
